

The Active Learning Trust

September 2014

Dear Parents,

The Active Learning Trust welcomes you to the start of the next very important school year for your child. As many of you will know, the Trust was established three years ago to provide direct support for schools that, for whatever reason, felt that they needed a different approach from that provided by the Local Authority. Over time, we have established a network of eleven schools across Cambridgeshire and Suffolk, each one being part of smaller 'hub' of schools in Lowestoft, Ipswich and Cambridgeshire. While your school's headteacher remains the key person in this network, they are supported by a team of very experienced specialists from ALT who work with them on the delivery of their plans for the continuing improvement of the school. Parents of course, play an absolutely critical role in the education of their children and I know your school does all it can to help you fulfil that vital responsibility. Please work with them in this by getting involved whenever you can in school events and finding out just what you can do each day to help your child be the very best they can be.

With very best wishes,

Clive Bush
